CASE NO. 10-CV-419-GPC (WVG)

ORDER DENYING DEFENDANTS K&L IMPORTS,
INC.; NHW, INC.; JOYMAX
TRADING, INC.; AND YK
TRADING, INC.'S MOTION TO SEVER CLAIMS FOR TRIAL

[Dkt. No. 232.]

16 On March 8, 2013, Defendants K&L Imports, Inc.; NHW, Inc.; Joy Max
17 Trading, Inc.; and YK Trading, Inc. (collectively "Handbag Defendants")<sup>1</sup> filed a 18 motion to sever claims for infringement of handbag designs from the watch designs for 19 trial. (Dkt. No. 232.)

20 On April 12, 2013, Plaintiff and AIF Corporation, a Watch Defendant, filed their 21 oppositions. (Dkt. Nos. 242, 243.) On April 23, 2013, Defendant RK Texas Leather 22 Mfg., Inc. filed a notice of joinder in Plaintiff's opposition. (Dkt. No. 244.)

23 On April 26, 2013, Defendants Joymax Trading, Inc. filed a reply in support of 24 the motion to sever claims. (Dkt. No. 245.) Defendants K & L Imports, Inc., NHW, 25 Inc. and YK Trading, Inc. filed their reply. (Dkt. No. 246.) On April 26, 2013, 26 Defendant Joymax Trading, Inc. ("Joymax") also filed a notice of joinder in Defendants 27

28 <sup>1</sup>Handbag Defendants concede that severance is not a perfect solution and raises but does not argue that bifurcation could be another approach for the Court to handle this case.

1 K&L Imports, Inc., NHW, Inc. and YK Trading, Inc.’s reply. (Dkt. No. 247.) The 2 motions are submitted on the papers without oral argument pursuant to Civil Local 3 Rule 7.1(d)(1). After a review of the briefs, supporting documentation, and applicable 4 law, the Court DENIES Handbag Defendants’ motion to sever claims for trial.

5 Background

6 Plaintiff Brighton Collectibles, Inc. (“Brighton”) manufactures and sells 7 women’s fashion accessories, including handbags and watches. Plaintiff has registered 8 its hardware designs as copyrights. Handbag Defendants consist of K&L Imports, Inc.; 9 NHW, Inc.; Joy Max Trading, Inc.; and YK Trading, Inc. Watch Defendants include 10 Defendants JCNY<sup>2</sup> and AIF Corporation. Certain copyrighted designs are used on both 11 handbags and watches.

12 On February 24, 2010, Brighton filed its original complaint against Defendant 13 RK Texas Leather Mfg., Inc. (“Texas Leather”). (Dkt. No. 1.) On December 6, 2010, 14 Texas Leather filed a third party complaint against K&L Import, Inc.; NHW, Inc. d/b/a/
15 Sense Trading Co.; YK Trading, Inc.; JC NY; Joy Max Trading, Inc.; and AIF 16 Corporation d/b/a Global Time International, Lucky-7 International and Time World.
17 (Dkt. No. 17.)

18 On February 28, 2011, Plaintiff filed a first amended complaint. (Dkt. No. 51.)
19 On August 31, 2011, Plaintiff filed a second amended complaint against (“SAC”)
20 against Defendants Texas Leather; Richard Ohr, Texas Leather’s owner; K&L Imports, 21 Inc.; NHW, Inc.; YK Trading, Inc.; Joy Max Trading, Inc.; and AIF Corporation. (Dkt.
22 No. 87.) The SAC alleges causes of action for copyright infringement; trade dress 23 infringement; false designation of origin; common law unfair competition; statutory 24 unfair competition; and trademark infringement. (Id.) On November 8, 2011, 25 Defendant Richard Ohr filed a cross claim against K&L Imports, Inc.; NHW, Inc.; Joy
26 Max Trading, Inc., YK Trading, Inc.; JCNY and AIF Corporation. (Dkt. No. 101.)

---

27 <sup>2</sup>Plaintiff does not bring a cause of action against JCNY as a defendant in the 28 second amended complaint. JCNY is a cross defendant in the cross claim filed by Defendant Richard Ohr. (Dkt. No. 101.)

On March 8, 2013, Handbag Defendants moved to sever claims for infringement of handbag designs from the watch designs for trial. (Dkt. No. 232.) Brighton, Texas Leather and AIF oppose. (Dkt. Nos. 242, 243, 244.) Handbag Defendants filed a reply. (Dkt. No. 245, 245, 246, 247.)

Discussion

I. Legal Standard

Under Federal Rule of Civil Procedure (“Rule”) 20(a)(2), permissive joinder of defendants is proper if: “(A) any right to relief is asserted against them jointly, severally, or in the alternative with respect to or arising out of the same transaction, occurrence, or series of transactions or occurrences; and (B) any question of law or fact common to all defendants will arise in the action.” Fed. R. Civ. P. 20(a)(2)(A). The permissive joinder rule “is to be construed liberally in order to promote trial convenience and to expedite the final determination of disputes, thereby preventing multiple lawsuits.” League to Save Lake Tahoe v. Tahoe Reg'l Planning Agency, 558 F.2d 914, 917 (9th Cir. 1997). The purpose of Rule 20(a) is to address the “broadest possible scope of action consistent with fairness to the parties; joinder of claims, parties and remedies is strongly encouraged.” United Mine Workers of Am. v. Gibbs, 383 U.S. 715, 724 (1966).

“The ‘same transaction’ requirement of Rule 20 refers to ‘similarity in the factual background of a claim; claims that arise out of a systematic pattern of events’ and have a ‘very definite logical relationship.’” Hubbard v. Hougland, No. 09-0939, 2010 U.S. Dist. WL 1416691, at *7 (E.D. Cal. Apr. 5, 2010) (quoting Bautista v. Los Angeles County, 216 F.3d 837, 842-843 (9th Cir. 2000)). In addition, “the mere fact that all [of a plaintiff’s] claims arise under the same general law does not necessarily establish a common question of law or fact.” Coughlin v. Rogers, 130 F.3d 1348, 1351 (9th Cir. 1997). The court has broad discretion to determine whether severance is permitted. Coleman v. Quaker Oats, Co., 232 F.3d 1271, 1297 (9th Cir. 2000).

However, “even once [the Rule 20(a)] requirements are met, a district court must

1 examine whether permissive joinder would ‘comport with the principles of 2 fundamental fairness’ or would result in prejudice to either side.” Id. at 1296 (citing 3 Desert Empire Bank v. Insurance Co. of North America, 623 F.2d 1371, 1375 (9th Cir.
 4 1980) (finding that the district court did not abuse its discretion when it severed certain 5 plaintiff’s claims without finding improper joinder)). Under Rule 20(b), the district 6 court may sever the trial in order to avoid prejudice. Coleman, 232 F.3d at 1296.

7 Rule 21 provides that “[t]he court may . . . sever any claim against a party.” Fed.
 8 R. Civ. P. 21. A court may sever a trial under Rule 21 even if the parties are properly 9 joined under Rule 20(a). Zaldana v. KB Home, C-08-3399 MMC, 2010 WL 4313777, 10 at * 1 (N.D. Cal. Oct. 26, 2010). The party seeking separate trials bears the burden of 11 proving that separation of the claims is necessary. See Roger-Vasselin v. Marriott 12 Int’l, Inc., No. C04-4027 TEH, 2006 WL 1506926, at *1 (N.D. Cal. 2006).

13 Handbag Defendants allege that the claims concerning the handbags in the 14 second amended complaint do not arise out of the same transaction, occurrence or 15 series of transaction as the claims concerning the watches. They do not dispute that 16 there are common questions of fact and law.

17 II. Federal Rule Civil Procedure 20(a)(2)

18 A. Arising out of the Same Transaction, Occurrence, or Series of 19 Transactions or Occurrences

20 Handbag Defendants argue that the claims of infringement of handbags do not 21 arise from the same transaction, occurrence, or series of transactions as the claims of 22 infringement of the watches as there is no fact overlap. The only connection between 23 the two groups is Texas Leather, the retailer that sold both watches and handbags. The 24 products and suppliers are different.

25 Plaintiff opposes<sup>3</sup> arguing that it is suing in one action both the importers and the

27 <sup>3</sup>Brighton also argues that moving Defendants have waived their right to argue 28 misjoinder. Brighton’s argument and caselaw do not support its waiver contention.
 Accordingly, the Court concludes that the Handbag Defendants have not waived their right to move to sever for purposes of trial.

1 wholesalers of the same infringing goods. It contends that Texas Leather acted in 2 concert with the Handbag Suppliers and Watch Suppliers to distribute products that 3 infringe Brighton's copyrights. Therefore, Texas Leather and Handbag Suppliers are 4 jointly liable for the infringement of Brighton's copyright; and Texas Leather and the 5 Watch Supplies are also jointly liable for the infringement of Brighton's copyright. It 6 contends that these claims are "logically related" and arise out of the same "series of 7 transaction or occurrences."

8 Defendant AIF, a Watch Defendant, also opposes the motion and contends that 9 the handbags and watches were supplied by Defendants to Texas Leather and then sold 10 by Texas Leather. In addition, for each Texas Leather product that Brighton alleges 11 infringes one of its copyrights and trade dress, Texas Leather allegedly received that 12 product from a cross defendant which satisfies the transaction or occurrence 13 requirement.

14 "The Ninth Circuit has interpreted the phrase 'same transaction, occurrence, or 15 series of transactions or occurrences' to require a degree of factual commonality 16 underlying the claims." Bravado Int'l Group Merch. Servs. v. Cha, No. CV 09-9066 17 PSG(CWx), 2010 WL 2650432, at *4 (C.D. Cal. June 30, 2010) (citing Coughlin v.
18 Rogers, 130 F.3d 1348, 1350 (9th Cir.1997)). Typically, this means that a party "must 19 assert rights or have rights asserted against them, that arise from related activities-a 20 transaction or an occurrence or a series thereof." Id. (emphasis in original) (citation 21 omitted). In Bravado, the district court found that there were sufficient allegations of 22 transaction-relatedness as to the first group. Id. It did not sever defendants that were 23 part of the same chain of distribution. Id. at *5 (Maggi Fashion Group supplied 24 Defendant ClothingIsland.com with its infringing merchandise).

25 In this Circuit, the rule simply requires "related activities" and "similarity in the 26 factual background of a claim." Jacques v. Hyatt Corp., No. C11-05364 WHA, 2012 27 WL 3010969, at *3 (N.D. Cal. July 23, 2012). In Jacques, plaintiff sued Hyatt for 28 negligence and premises liability based on a fall he had while descending stairs at the 1 Hyatt hotel. Id. at 1. He suffered a ruptured patella tendon. Id. Subsequently, two 2 months later, plaintiff was wearing Defendant Medical Technology's orthopedic knee 3 brace to stabilize his knee after the injury incurred at the hotel. Id. While descending 4 some stairs, he fell and his patella tendon re-ruptured and required another surgery. Id.

5 The court denied the motion to sever concluding that "the injury and re-injury occurred 6 to the same body part in exactly the same way, the second accident would not have 7 occurred but for the first, and there are overlapping damages." Id. at 3. The court 8 concluded the threshold "series of occurrences" requirement was met. Id. at 4.

9 The cases cited by Handbag Defendants concern cases where the defendants 10 independently infringed the same copyright, trademark, or patent and were not 11 considered part of the same transaction or occurrence. See Golden Scorpio Corp. v.
12 Steel Horse Bar & Grill, 596 F. Supp. 2d 1282, 1285 (D. Az. 2009) (court held 13 improper joinder as plaintiff brought suit against thirteen other business entities across 14 the U.S. alleging use of its trademark name as defendants were independent, separate 15 and distinct from any other defendant); Arista Records LLC v. Does 1-4, 589 F. Supp.
16 2d 151, 154-55 (D. Conn. 2008) (record companies copyright infringement action 17 against pseudonymous university defendants that downloaded popular songs using 18 various peer-to-peer file sharing networks failed to alleged that defendants conspired 19 or acted jointly); In re EMC Corp., 677 F.3d at 1359 (defendants are alleged to 20 independently offer services that provide online backup and storage for home or 21 business computer use that infringed plaintiff's patent).

22 This case is distinguishable as it is not a case where Brighton sued Defendants 23 independently with no factual commonality or related activities. The connecting party 24 that satisfies the "same transaction, occurrence or series of occurrences" is Texas 25 Leather. Both sets of Defendants supplied allegedly infringing products to Texas 26 Leather to be sold in its retail store. Moreover, there is overlap between the watch and 27
28

1 handbag claims as the same copyrighted works appear on handbags and watches.<sup>4</sup> The 2 Court concludes that the allegations as to all Defendants arise out of the “same 3 transaction, occurrence, or series of transactions or occurrences.”

4 Even if the requirements of Rule 20 have been satisfied, a trial court must also 5 look at other relevant factors to determine whether permissive joinder of a party 6 comports with the principles of fundamental fairness. Desert Empire Bank v. Ins. Co.
 7 of North America, 623 F.2d 1371, 1375 (9th Cir. 1980). These factors include judicial 8 economy, prejudice and whether separate claims require different witnesses and 9 documentary proof.<sup>5</sup> Jacques, 2012 WL 3010969, at * 2 (citing SEC v. Leslie, No.
 10 C07-3444, 2010 WL 2991038, at *4 (N.D. Cal. July 29, 2010)).

11 B. Judicial Economy

12 Brighton argues that judicial economy will be facilitated given the common core 13 questions of law and fact if the Court denies the motion to sever. If severance is 14 granted, it will be required to put on the same evidence in two different trials as to: 1) 15 the history of Brighton, its development of the “Brighton look” and the ornamental 16 metal hardware used on both its watches and handbags; 2) its design, creation, and

18 <sup>4</sup>Handbag Defendants claim that while the registered copyrights are exactly the 19 same, the commercial embodiment of those copyrights, as they appear on the watches 20 that Brighton sells, are quite different from the way those copyrights look on Brighton’s handbags. These differences will only confuse the jury. This argument concerns one of the fundamental fairness factors discussed below.

21 <sup>5</sup>Handbag Defendants and Brighton disagree on the factors the court should 22 consider in evaluating permissive joinder. Handbag Defendants assert that the factors 23 in In re EMC Corporation, 677 F.3d 1351 (Fed. Cir. 2012) control while Brighton relies on the factors from SEC v. Leslie, No. C07-3444, 2010 WL 2991038, at *4 (N.D.
 Cal. July 29, 2010) which relies on a Eastern District of New York case.

24 It is not clear which test prevails as the Ninth Circuit has not ruled on this issue 25 and district courts have looked to both cases. The factors in In re EMC are more 26 amenable to patent cases as it requires the court to look at “whether the alleged acts of infringement occurred during the same time period, the existence of some relationship among the defendants, the use of identically sourced components, licensing or 27 technology agreement between the defendants, overlap of the products’ or processes’ development and manufacture, and whether the case involves a claim for lost profits.” 28 In re EMC, 677 F.3d at 1360-61. The factors in Leslie address the courts’ concern whether joinder of a party comports with the principles of fundamental fairness. See Desert Empire Bank, 623 F.2d at 1375. Accordingly, the Court finds the factors in Leslie more relevant in this case.

1 registration of the copyrighted works incorporated into both handbags and watches, 2 including in certain instances the same copyrighted designs; 3) infringement of 3 Brighton's copyrights by Texas Leather and its suppliers; 4) willfulness of Texas 4 Leather's infringement; and 5) damages suffered by Brighton as a result of Texas 5 Leather's infringement. Moreover, Texas Leather and its co-defendants intend to put 6 on the same evidence to support their defenses which includes a claim of lack of 7 originality.

8 AIF similarly argues that two trials will increase judicial inefficiency. There is 9 substantial overlap of issues between the watch designs and handbag designs 10 including: (1) same overlapping copyright issues of facts and law relating to 11 ownership, validity/invalidity, and alleged infringement; 2) same plaintiff, plaintiff's 12 witnesses, and plaintiff's experts; 3) same Texas Leather defendant and defense 13 witnesses; 4) same indemnification issues raised by Texas Leather against defendants; 14 and 5) same copyright designs asserted against watch and handbag designs.

15 In their reply, Handbag Defendants assert that if there are two trials, many of the 16 issues determined by the first jury will be precluded from consideration by the second 17 trial based on collateral estoppel which will substantially shorten the second trial. This 18 will reduce judicial inefficiency.

19 Based on what is before the Court, two separate trials will produce a significant 20 amount of overlap in witnesses, issues of fact and law, and defenses. This would result 21 in judicial inefficiency and not promote judicial economy.

22 C. Prejudice

23 Handbag Defendants further contend that they will be prejudiced if they have 24 their trial joined with the Watch Defendants. They contend they will be required to pay 25 their attorneys for days of extra time involved in sitting through trial related solely to 26 the Watch Defendant and will save them "tens, if not hundred, of thousands of dollars 27 in attorneys' fees." (Dkt. No. 232 at 17.) They also argue that the case may confuse 28 the jury as any potential bad acts by the Watch Defendants could, in the eyes of a jury,

1 be held against the Handbag Defendants. Moreover, jurors will find it virtually 2 impossible to separate the claims and match them with the corresponding Defendants 3 especially where the copyrights are the same but the commercial embodiment of those 4 copyrights as they appear on the watches and handbags are quite different.

5 AIF asserts that severance will not create jury confusion and that the claim is 6 based on speculation. It contends that the legal issues will overlap as well as a 7 significant amount of the facts. In fact, AIF argues that two trials would cause more 8 potential for confusion as there will be two juries to determine whether the copyrighted 9 work and the alleged infringing work are substantially similar. Two trials will result 10 in double the amount of costs and expenses and waste the time and resources of the 11 court, witnesses, juries and the parties. As AIF discussed above, there are also 12 overlapping copyright issues of fact and law and overlapping witnesses and parties.
13 While Handbag Defendants argue that it will expend attorneys' fees in sitting through 14 the watch related portion of the proceedings, Brighton and Texas Leather will both 15 incur significantly more attorneys' fees if they have to prepare and participate in two 16 trials. Moreover, the economic burden on the Court to conduct two trials would be 17 great.

18 Similarly, Brighton argues that conducting two trials will result in tremendous 19 inefficiencies as Brighton and Texas Leather would be required to present much of the 20 same evidence to two separate juries.

21 The Handbag Defendants' argument regarding jury confusion is speculative.
22 The Court is satisfied that proper jury instructions and a special verdict form can 23 minimize any confusion. Further, any prejudice to Handbag Defendants by trying all 24 of the claims in one trial will be outweighed by the greater prejudice to the remaining 25 parties if the case is severed.

26 D. Witnesses and Documentary Proof

27 Brighton argues that both percipient and expert witnesses will testify for both 28 sets of defendants. The witnesses that will need to testify at both trials will be Jerry

1 Kohl, Brighton's founder, the Brighton designers who created the copyrighted works, 2 Brighton's President of sales and marketing, Defendant Richard Ohr, the owner of 3 Texas Leather, and other Texas Leather employees involved in the infringing sale. The 4 parties' experts on the issue of copyrightability and damages will address both claims 5 as defendants have jointly retained five experts to testify. These witnesses will be 6 inconvenienced as they will have to travel and testify twice and Brighton and Texas 7 Leather will incur substantial additional attorneys' fees.

8 Handbag Defendants do not address this issue as they relied on the factors in In 9 re EMC which does not consider witness and documentary proof as a factor. Despite 10 their failure to address this factor, there is no indication that these common witnesses, 11 percipient and expert, would not have to testify twice.

12 Here, Handbag Defendants move to sever for purposes of trial. Discovery is 13 complete, summary judgment motions have been ruled on, and the case is ready for 14 trial. After consideration of the factors concerning fairness, the Court concludes that 15 they do not weigh in favor of severance. Because of the significant amount of common 16 witnesses, and common issues of fact and law, severance would not result in judicial 17 economy. Handbag Defendants have not demonstrated that they will be unfairly 18 prejudiced unless a severance is granted. In sum, Handbag Defendants have failed to 19 show that they are entitled to severance pursuant to Rules 20(a)(2), 20(b), and 21.

20 Conclusion

21 Based on the above, the Court DENIES Defendants' motion to sever claims for 22 trial.
